

SOME BLUSTERING TALK

FROM REV. J. L. HARLEY ABOUT
THE EDITOR OF THIS PAPERFor Publishing an Extract From and Commenting on One of His Alleged Speeches.

Editor Times and Democrat:

In your paper of September 25th, you have some editorials which you must know are untrue. In one place you say: "Rev. J. L. Harley says his father was a deacon and ran a still, and his uncle was a deacon and ran a bar, and all the church members carried their fruit and other things to the still to be turned into brandy." Now, Sir, I call upon you to tell when you ever heard me, or knew me to ever make any such statement, anywhere or at any time. You have known me from my youth. I am from your own county, Orangeburg, and you know it. You know that my father was not even a member of the Baptist church, much less a deacon. The people throughout the entire county know that he was a member of the Methodist church to the day of his death.

They know too that he was never the owner of a still in his life. They all know, and you should know, at least before you publish such things, that I never had an uncle who kept a bar. You have made a great deal of a lot of stuff that has been published, and you have republished, about what is claimed to have happened down in Barnwell county where I was born and grew up. This, like the other of your charges, is false, and you certainly must have known it. The people of Orangeburg county know that I was born and raised in Orangeburg county.

Now, Sir, all I ask of you and the other few papers that are fighting the prohibition movement in this State, is to publish the truth. Your attempt to stab the Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League and thereby hurt the cause, is understood. Your attempt to slander me and especially the name of my deceased father will not be tolerated. I am glad that there were two ministers of the gospel and a large congregation of intelligent hearers present when I spoke at Edgefield. They know that I have been slandered and misrepresented in this matter.

They know that the whole fabrication was based upon a picture I drew of conditions forty years ago, when bars were all over the country, and conditions as they now are. When I had finished the picture and shown the contrast, I said thank God, those days are gone and gone forever. I said that back yonder in those so-called good old days, the officials in the churches had their bars and stills and it was the custom for even the children to drink eggnog on Christmas morning. These are historical facts and as sad as they are, yet they are true.

In regard to the Liquor Dealers' Association's buying the newspapers, I would like to ask the Editor of The Times and Democrat does he deny it? Why does he want me to specify? Have I ever charged his paper with such a deal? Have I ever charged any paper in this State with such a deal? I did not. I did say that the liquor people were buying the papers in some places. I said they had bought whole columns in papers and had published as news, articles against prohibition, which were nothing more nor less than paid advertisements. This I assert to be true. I now reassert it and can give the names and editors of some who have refused the proposition of the liquor people. I have the form of contract to be signed by the editor whose paper is thus subsidized.

Yes, I said they had actually bought preachers. Thank God, I have not had to charge any minister of South Carolina with selling out to the liquor trust. But I have the names of some in other States who have. If the editor of The Times and Democrat desires to deny these things and champion the cause of this gang, against the cause of prohibition, he is at liberty to do so. I shall stand by my gun in defense of my ancestors; in defense of the church and the right, if I have to wade through an army of devils neck deep. There is no use in quibbling in this matter. We are face to face with some things that are startling, but they are true. I have been put in the position I occupy by the authorities of my church and by a committee composed of men of the different churches of this State. I am here to do my duty and all I ask of any man or newspaper is to publish the truth. This I expect and this I demand.

Jno. L. Harley,
State Supt. Anti-Saloon League.

Those Who Passed.

The following are the names of those who passed at the teachers' examination held here October 1st: Misses Beulah V. Dukes, Marie Dukes, Ermine Brunson, Claudine Wannamaker, Mary Alice Stokes, Rose Witherspoon, Annie M. Wolfe, Susie Albergotti, Sallie Wannamaker, Quinno Shuler, Marie L. Adden, Margaret Oliver, Ada Lee Parler, Juanita Fickling, Ada Strouman, Viola Shuler, L. Julia Shuler, Belle Wolfe, Emily Culler, Mrs. J. W. Livingston, and Mrs. Paul Livingston, Mr. Claud Fairley.

Convict Escapes.

King Argoe, a negro convict from Springfield, made his escape from Chair Gang No. 2, on last Monday night while at work near Jamison. Argoe is said to be a shrewd fellow, and in some way he managed to slip his handcuffs and elude the guards. In this way he made his escape. Supervisor Felder offers thirty dollars reward for his capture.

The State Fair.

The State fair is approaching and preparations are being made for a bigger fair than ever. The opening day is November 1 and the fair will last for six days. On November 6 President Taft will visit Columbia and will address those who are there then. The address will be one of the features of the fair and other attractions are: The Clemson-Carolina football game, a number of meetings of importance, and better entertainments than the authorities have been able to secure in any previous year.

Saw Auto Fire Engine.

Chief T. O. S. Dibble, of the Orangeburg department, returned to the city Tuesday morning from Augusta, Ga., where he witnessed the official tests of the auto fire apparatus recently installed there. He is enthusiastic as to what he had seen during the interesting tests, and came back a sworn adherent of the new system of battling flames. Chief Dibble stated that he and the other firemen at the test had been treated most courteously by the officials of the Augusta fire department during their visit.

Death of Miss Maggie May.

Miss Maggie May, of this city, died at her home on Tuesday night at 9 o'clock. She was about thirty-seven years of age. Her funeral services were conducted by Rev. L. P. McGee on Wednesday afternoon at four o'clock and was laid to rest in Sunnyside Cemetery. One brother and one sister, besides a host of friends, mourn her death.

BOWMAN NEWS.

Indian Field Campmeeting One of the Best Yet Held.

Bowman, Oct. 6.—Special: Indian Field Campmeeting near St. George, which was held last week, was well represented by Bowman folks, some of whom were tenters on this famous old ground. Nearly the entire population below Bowman were also tenters for visitors, many looking forward to it with keen interest from year to year. The social feature is the drawing card nowadays. The behavior was unusually good, compared with that of last year, and those in authority are to be congratulated on handling such a large crowd with so little friction. Very little sign of liquor drinking was seen at any time. Social chat and promenading was pleasantly engaged in during the internum of religious services.

Presiding Elder Smith had his hands full, there being 22 of the clergy present at one time, or another during the meeting. Some did not preach at all, while others did double duty. Rev. Samuel Danner was present and with Rev. Mr. Taylor, as assistant, led in the song service. Mr. Danner preached several times also, to the delight of his many friends in this section. Rev. G. W. Davis filled the pulpit, preaching at 11 a. m. Sunday. This is usually the "big gun" sermon at Campmeeting. Mr. Davis' gun was well loaded and his aim well taken, and the mark well-spattered with shot. His sermon was a good, "all round" one, his subject being the "Christian Race."

Bowman and vicinity was visited yesterday evening by a thunder storm of unusual severity for this season of the year. It reminded one of an evening in July or August. Carrier No. 2 reported hail on his route, with the thunder storm of such severity that he was forced to stop for an hour. Carrier No. 3, O. P. Evans, tested a motor cycle on his route yesterday, and notwithstanding an intermission by rain, he came in ahead of all the carriers, bringing in eight money orders, "to boot."

Mr. J. Peter Cook, accompanied by his son-in-law, Mr. C. E. Ayers, returned last week from a visit to Florida prospecting for the purchase of a place out there. They did not seem to be "much struck" with what they saw, and will wisely remain in old Orangeburg county a while longer.

A quantity of fine hay has been harvested in this section during the past several weeks. The weather has been unusually favorable for this kind of work for some time, and rush work has been the order of the day in this line of produce.

CLOSING THE DISPENSARY.

Letter From Mr. W. B. West, the Dispensary Auditor.

As Dispensary Auditor, it becomes my duty under an Act of the General Assembly of 1909, "To provide for the closing of the several county dispensaries in this State and for the sale of all stocks of liquors, beverages, fixtures and other property belonging to the several dispensaries," to make investigations as to the conduct of these dispensaries and to approve all claims against the dispensaries before same are paid. It is my earnest desire to have these dispensaries closed in strict compliance with the law, and in order to do so, I hereby request that all persons having claims against the county dispensary boards shall report same to me before the 15th day of November, 1909. I also desire that any and all persons who know of any irregularities or wrong doings in the management of any dispensary to report same to me in order that a thorough investigation of all such matters may be made prior to November 15th, at which time the business must be closed. I am sending this request to all of the counties which have recently voted against the sale of whiskey, that I may have the assistance of all persons who may be in position to aid in such matters.

Yours respectfully,

W. B. West,
Dispensary Auditor.

Labor Day.

The Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of St. Paul's Methodist Episcopal church, South, of Orangeburg, S. C., at its meeting last Friday afternoon, decided to observe Thursday, October 14, 1909, as Labor Day in their society. That means that the members will give the day's work for the benefit of the cause of missions. The members may do any work most convenient to them, as sewing, making pickles, preserves, etc., the proceeds of the work to be placed in the treasury toward raising the $175 pledged by our auxiliary (outside of the regular dues, etc.) for the support of our own missionaries. Should anything serious prevent any of the members from observing the day appointed, another day convenient to them may be substituted during the month. Reports of the day's labor to be made at next meeting, first Friday in November, at the parsonage. Should it be impossible to raise money by working for it, self-denial or something of that sort may be resorted to.

It is hoped that all members will enter into this movement heartily, and that a neat sum will be realized by the society in this way.

State Fair November 1 to 6.

Six days of fun and enlightenment is what the State fair promises visitors this year. The fair starts on November 1 and will continue until the night of November 6. Two big football games including the Clemson-Carolina game will be played. Other attractive features will be in the list this year.

PROFIT IN PECAN TREES

AN ORANGEBURG MAN'S SUCCESS
IN NUT GROWING.A Visit to Capt. M. O. Dantzler's
"Hardwood Farm," Pecanway
Place, Near This City.

The beautiful city of Orangeburg nestles on the banks of the North Edisto River, and hard by the northern limits of the city, is to be seen one of the prettiest hardwood farms in the Southern States. "Pecanway Place" is its name and it is the home of Capt. M. O. Dantzler and his excellent wife and children—an ideal home, a happy family. On it are growing one thousand budded pecan trees that will return to their owner, wit increasing certainty, cents and dollars. There is no dead wood on this place. Everything seems to be growing, from the 13,000 little pecan trees in the nursery, to the fields of corn, asparagus, potatoes, etc., all looking up; nothing here looking down. No cotton, though. You might think that unorthodox in the heart of such a great cotton country, with cotton to right and cotton to the left, plenty of it everywhere; but the growing of the fleecy staple is eschewed on "Pecanway Place."

Just 96 acres, that's all. Go with me, if you please, to this farm in the fall of 1900 when the present owner bought it for $2,500. The wisecracker pronounced him foolish; this was extravagance gone mad; it wouldn't grow cow peas. In fact there was nothing growing on it then but nut grass, dewberry vines and larkspurs. A few old dilapidated outbuildings; a swamp in the center of it with a fish hole or two where the boys from town caught hungry pike, told the tale of negro renters for thirty years. The redeeming features were from 20 to 30 acres of southern pines in the background and five neglected live oaks in the one-time front yard. Nine short years remind you of the past conditions except the field of pine and the live oaks, which a tree surgeon's hands have changed to their wanted condition of staleness and grace.

There are now about 1,000 budded pecan trees growing on 40 acres of this place; a quarter dozen 8-years old and the balance from 7 down to 2 years old. Five hundred are now bearing commercially, though not a yearly fortune as you will later on perceive. The yield is estimated at from 500 to 1,000 pounds this year. But what pecans! Four varieties, the most delicious of which is a small nut with shell so thin and so well filled that three pounds of them will give you two pounds of meat. Two of the varieties are very much larger equally as well filled, with shell not quite so thin. He has but two trees of the other variety, which is unknown to him, but both trees are loaded with big nuts, now nearly matured, and he is expecting great things from them.

Mr. Dantzler thinks, however, that a timid spirit ought to stay clear of pecan culture, as the following story will indicate. In the late winter of 1900, 500 guaranteed budded pecan trees were purchased from one nursery and 8 from another after investigation it was learned that the 500 trees were not budded, but seedlings cut off at the water sprout to deceive the uninitiated; hence these were remorsefully dug up and thrown away. This meant a suit against this nursery for recovery of the purchase money, and also meant a year's time lost in getting a bearing orchard. This all happened when the successful budding of the pecan was almost unknown and a rare accomplishment. If the owner of "Pecanway Place" had then known as much about budding this finest of all nut trees as he does now, and could have gotten but wood from fine varieties, the 500 little seedlings would have been budded, thereby saving him $800, or $900 for replacing them with budded trees. It may be said that the suit instituted was won and Mr. Dantzler undaunted took up the work again and now has, as indicated above, 1,000 trees growing where the name pests were planted before.

In 1908 it was discovered that the entire orchard was affected with a fungus disease—Fusicladium effusum. This was a blow so hard that it would have staggered the timid man. It was seen, day by day, that this fungus or scab, was blackening and shriveling the new foliage and the thousands of young nuts and there was realized at harvest time scarcely two bushels of matured nuts. A bushel of these was sold in Orangeburg for $15.

The diseased condition of this orchard was promptly reported to the United States department of field investigation and in turn by that department to Mr. M. B. Waite, pathologist, in charge of fruit diseases. This noted scientist took the matter up and had it well in hand by the early spring of 1909 and carried out the most elaborate experiment spraying for this orchard that the government has ever undertaken, for the control of pecan diseases. The owner of "Pecanway Place" entered into this plan with earnestness and has sprayed his orchard eight times during the past spring and summer and feels much encouraged with results. Bordeaux mixture with a little arsenate of lead added as an insecticide, was largely used.

The moral ought to be clear. "Don't plant pecan groves expecting to get large returns unless you purpose taking special care of them," says Mr. Dantzler. The owner of this orchard is fitted up with grafting tools and knives and has made such a success of budding his fine varieties to small seedlings, trees that it influenced him to start the nursery above referred to. He will bud the nursery trees next summer.

He advises any farmer who has small seedling trees to bud them from a known variety, as it is admitted to be a very rare instance where a pecan tree will bear true to the nut planted.

Just a word about the financial part of this venture. If the "Pecanway Place" pecan will bring 30 cents to 35 cents per pound, as they did last season, although under a normal size, it is reasonable to predict that when this orchard is in full bearing with, the proceeds will be enough to at least defray the yearly living expenses of an ordinary Orangeburg family, and if not, surely $64 net profit per acre from 15 acres of asparagus grown on the little farm ought to keep the wolf from the door, especially when enough corn, oats and hay is also made to keep in good condition seven head of mules and horses and a goodly number of hogs.

As an after thought, but quite important, Mr. Dantzler also used his spraying outfit to good advantage on his apple trees (using a self-boiled lime mixture); and on the 100 bunch grape vines here growing to perfection.

Mr. Dantzler is a most intelligent and estimable gentleman, and notwithstanding the drawbacks encountered, he is enthusiastic about his venture and if it can be made a success, he is the man to do it. Therefore if any of the readers of The Times and Democrat contemplate going into pecan raising as a business, I confidently refer them to Captain Dantzler, who will impart the information he has and gladly put them in the right path leading to success.

One word more. This farm of about 100 acres, bought in 1900 for $2,500, could no doubt be sold today, even if denuded of everything of value put upon it by Mr. Dantzler, save, perhaps, the fertilization, for from $15,000 to $20,000, while the home and farm as they stand today represent to their owner a value of perhaps $40,000.

I am greatly indebted to Mr. Dantzler for the information which assisted me so greatly in the preparation of this article and for the work done by him directly in its construction, and for many other courtesies exacted for many other courtesies exacted.

Norway Happenings.

Norway, Oct. 5.—Special: Cotton will soon be gathered in this section if the weather continues on as at present, for we have been having good weather here for the past few days, and trust it will continue so for a few days longer.

The town of Norway is beginning to look like itself once more, since the big burn they had some time ago. Mr. H. P. Fulmer's new store has just been finished and has opened again. Mr. P. W. Hutto and Mr. B. B. Williams will soon have their stores completed and will open up a big line of goods.

Mr. W. T. Glover and family, of Norway, have moved down to Estill. Miss Norris Gray is visiting her relatives and friends at Norway for a few days.

Mr. J. J. Sandiper spent the day at Norway Sunday.

Mr. Emory and Roy Williams spent the day Sunday at Colston.

Mr. Rad. Able, of Norway, left a few days ago to go to Orangeburg O. C. I. school.

Mr. Brag Williams, of this section, has gone to the Columbia College.

Mr. Ben Moss, of near Norway, is at the Columbia hospital for treatment now. He has been there some time, and we hope to see him back to Norway in a few days well again.

Items From Vance.

Vance, Oct. 4.—Special: Miss Ever Lou Shuler, of Ellmore; Mr. Herman Bull, of Vance, and Mr. Little Rhames, of Holly Hill, all left last week for Edgefield, S. C., where they will attend the S. C. C. I., where they will attend the S. C. C. I., where they will attend the S. C. C. I.

Mrs. Geo. Bull, of Vance, is visiting her sisters, Mrs. T. A. Amaker, of St. Matthews, S. C.

The Providence Graded School opened today with Prof. McCown as principal and Miss Lola Evans as assistant.

Prof. Bebbler, principal of North Providence High School, was recently married to Miss Vent, of Philadelphia, Pa.

The crops are very promising in this part of the county.

A Reader.

Married at Summerton.

Summerton, October 1.—Special: On Thursday evening, September 30, 1909, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. LeGrande, Miss Lachbia Hutto, of Orangeburg, became the wife of Mr. C. F. Miller, of Maryland. Rev. E. C. Jones officiating. Miss Hutto is a young lady who is generally loved by all. She attaches by her personal magnetism, sweet disposition and Christian character. Mr. Miller is connected with the firm of Miller Brothers, of Maryland, and is a young man of sterling qualities. Mr. and Mrs. Miller will be in Summerton some time, after which they will make their home in Maryland.

$30 Reward.

A reward of thirty dollars is offered for the capture of an escaped convict known as Joseph Argo. Said convict is dark in color, about five feet, eight inches in height, and weighs about one hundred and sixty pounds. He has peculiar way of blinking his eyes, blinking them fast and regular and showing the whites of them while so doing. He also shows his front teeth all of the time. Also has a peculiar quiver in his voice when talking.

This reward will be paid to anyone delivering the said convict to the manager of chain gang No. 2.

TWICE-TOLD TESTIMONY.

Orangeburg People Are Doing All
They Can for Fellow Sufferers.

Orangeburg testimony has been published to prove the merit of Doan's Kidney Pills to others in Orangeburg who suffer from bad backs and kidney ills. Let any sufferers doubt that the cures made by Doan's Kidney Pills are thorough and lasting, we produce confirmed proof—statements from Orangeburg people saying that the cures they told of years ago were permanent. Here's an Orangeburg case:

J. H. Pearson, carpenter, 62 Sellers street, Orangeburg, S. C., says: "I used Doan's Kidney Pills several years ago with such good results that I publicly recommend them. At this time I am pleased to say that I still hold the same high opinion of them as I believe they are the best kidney remedy to be had."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the names—Doan's—and take no other.

Refuses to Endorse Claim.

The county board of commissioners met at the Supervisor's office on Monday. That whole day and part of the next was taken up in passing on claims, important among which was that of Dr. Sturkie, who was elected attorney of the board of commissioners, but whom Supervisor Felder refused to recognize as his attorney, he having retained Messrs. Brantley & Zeigler in that capacity. The board approved Dr. Sturkie's claim for services at attorney as heretofore, but the supervisor again refused to sign the claim. Dr. Sturkie will in all probability take legal steps to recover, but what action he will pursue is not known at this time.

Young Man Missing.

David Dantzler, the nineteen-year old son of Mr. Geo. Dantzler, of the Ellmore section, is said to be missing. The young man was in this city on Saturday night, but left early Sunday morning. The young man left his home on Saturday while his father was in Columbia, and said he was going to Indian Field Campmeeting. It seems, however, he did not go there, but came to this city. Mr. Dantzler is anxious to hear of his son and will be glad to get information about him. The young man may be visiting friends somewhere in the country, and will turn up home shortly.

Crushed by Timber.

Mr. J. Fant Broadway, who lived at Pinewood on the Atlantic Coast Line Railway just across Santee River, was killed on Tuesday by a large piece of timber falling on him from a skid at the planing mill there, of which he is a part owner. Mr. Broadway was a member of the firm of Broadway Brothers, who operate a big saw mill and planing mill there. He died in a few minutes after the timber struck him. Mr. Broadway was about thirty-six years of age and single. He was popular, progressive and public spirited, and will be very much missed in his community.

Livingston Personals.

Mr. Marion Pon left last Saturday for Gainesville, Fla., where he has accepted a position as clerk for a dry goods firm.

Mr. Guy Wooley will leave the 10th for the Medical College of Augusta, Ga.

Mr. J. D. Hutto will soon have his new store completed, and he expects to open up a fine line of goods before the holidays.

The crops in this section are short, but the high price that cotton is bringing is very encouraging.

Pythians Take Notice.

At a meeting of the Knights of Pythias last Monday evening it was decided to give a smoker and a sort of "get-together blow-out" at the next regular meeting, Monday evening, October 18, at their hall. All ye Knights be on hand with whetted teeth and a keen appetite for some fine Haystacks that will be on tap.

A Baptist preacher at East Lake, Ala., named J. M. McCord, was lately able to attend to his duties. A friend put him on Johnson's Tonic, and in three weeks he wrote he was well and heavier than he had been in 15 years.

The half-well kind can put on flesh only by driving out malaria.
